Organizing Tragedy

For the Law Enforcement & Fire Services

This 2-day course is designed for any member of a law enforcement or fire agency that may be involved in any of the services pertaining to the death of a department member. Whether you're a Chief Officer, Honor Guard member, or concerned with being prepared for tragedy, this course is a must. Focusing on the needs of the surviving family and department, this course explains standardized procedures that will prepare your department, organize your resources, and instruct you on procedures associated with public safety personnel deaths and funerals. Whether your department has no death protocol at all or has been involved with a tragedy, Organizing Tragedy has something to offer everyone. This course is classroom based; it contains only logistic and procedural based material.
